I would normally use DateTime.Now.ToString("MM/dd/yyyy HH:mm"), but this is not suitable for me. I would like to create a method that takes only a string like 'dd/MM/yyyy HH:mm' as an argument and returns the formatted string. Can anyone suggest the best way to do this? Thanks in advance. A: You can format date and time string with custom pattern and following overload of DateTime.Now DateTime.Now.ToString("dd/MM/yyyy HH:mm"); Q: jQuery.each function for multiple divs I have a list of all sorts of divs containing form data. The form data for each row (div) will contain similar information. I'd like to write a function that can be called to process each row of divs and create an object containing the data, something like: function createDataObject($n) { var dataObject = {}; $.each($('div').$n, function(i, dataObject) { // some processing here to create dataObject }); } So if I were to have a list of divs containing form data like so: Name: George, Date: 01/01/2014, Age: 20 Name: Jimmy, Date: 02/02/ 2d92ce491b
