KEYMACRO is an easy to use password manager for Windows. It enables you to store all your passwords in a text file and load them quickly and easily. You can even choose which user name to use. The first thing you will need to do is to install KEYMACRO. The installer is totally automatic and does not require any registration. Just follow the instructions and you will be done in no time. Once you have finished installing the program, launch it. You will be taken to the main window. Choose the language you want and the file location where you want the files to be saved. After you have done this, simply click on the Ok button to start the creation process. Now it is time to create your first user. You will find this window in the program. Use the

UP and DOWN arrow keys to move back and forth between the list of all the users in your files. You can also use the OK button to select one of them. A dialog box will appear. Choose a username and a password. When you are done, press the Enter key. The program will start the process of creating a new user. When it has finished it will return you to the main window. Now you can use this new user to log into the internet. So lets say you want to use AOL for instance. Simply log in with the user you created in the program and you will have access to all the passwords for AOL. You can now load any file you like and log out.

After you are finished, press the Exit button. Using the POP3 and IMAP folders You can use the program to use POP3 or IMAP folders. You will need to set up your server in the program. Simply select the server and the folder where you want to store the files. You can then access the files from any of your clients. This is what happens when you log in to the client. This example is for an email client called Thunderbird. Simply type in your username and password. Next press the OK button. After you have finished logging in, simply press the Close button and you are done. A new window will open. This is where you can edit your account information. To change the account type, simply change the box. You can use this window to add multiple accounts. Simply press the + button to add more users. After you have finished, press the OK button. This will open the windows again. Press the Close button and you are done. 1d6a3396d6
