Seasonal variations in body composition of F. sciuropterus (Crustacea, Decapoda) in the Potomac River, Maryland. We measured seasonal variations in body size and other body components in the crab Fissostethus sciuropterus, a species common in the Potomac River, Maryland. All adults exhibited significant seasonal changes in wet weight and protein content of dorsal carapace, although the size of the female (and possibly male) gonad did not change throughout the study. This pattern is similar to that observed in the freshwater lobster, Panopea zelandica, but differs from that shown by the predatory marine hermit crab, Pagurus bernhardus. As with other crustaceans, seasonal variation in the size of the gonad in F. sciuropterus is probably caused by modulation of secondary growth.

Round-Up: Uncarrier Previews Full Availability of T-Mobile's 5G Network Next Month T-Mobile is about to make 5G a reality for the first time in the US. The Uncarrier will roll out the super fast mobile network "soon after" the launch of Google's Pixel 4, according to a T-Mobile employee (via Twitter). The Uncarrier has already been testing out some pretty interesting 5G capabilities such as group video calling and VoLTE on its network over the past few months, but it's not quite ready for prime time just yet. What's more, T-Mobile's 5G service is yet to be named – the Uncarrier was testing "5G Evolution" in its Las Vegas office according to TmoNews. The employee also claims to have seen the Uncarrier in talks with Verizon about working on a combined network. Adding to the rumor that T-Mobile is planning to launch its 5G network in 2019, the carrier has been teasing a launch for 5G this year too. The Uncarrier teased a 5G event for this month (April) back in February, but teased a 5G event for May just this morning (March). Several hours ago, T-Mobile teased a network announcement coming "soon." The carrier also claims to be "very close" to launching a 5G network, even though T-Mobile's competitors Verizon and AT&T have already launched their 5G services. Some industry experts think that T-Mobile may be waiting to launch its 5G network when its current LTE network is performing better after the Q1 2018 exclusivity that the Uncarrier has experienced over the last three years. T-Mobile is set to unveil its plans for next year's event in just four days time on Tuesday, April 17, at an event in Las Vegas. Its next event could see the launch of a new subscriber plan, new innovations, and a 5G network launch. Are you excited about the possibility of T-Mobile launching its 5G network in 2019? Update! We've now heard from a reliable T-Mobile source that the carrier is already testing the 5G network. T-Mobile's 5G service will likely be called "5G Evolution" and is expected to launch sometime this year.
